MOOD:  good grief.

MUSIC: '80s marathon. No, really.

Okay, someone (https://www.livejournal.com/away?to=http%3A//www.newscientist.com/article/dn14883-vip-stalkers-prone-to-serious-mental-illness-.html%3FDCMP%3DILC-arttsrhcol%26nsref%3Dspectr10_head_Stalkers%2520are%2520ill) hasn't been reading the bulletins we've been sending. Or something.

Why, yes, there is a difference between people who stalk people they're acquainted with, and people who stalk total strangers.

Thank you

...And there goes the weekend

But hey, we got a day and a half of this one! And I got to sleep in for two whole mornings. Too bad

I've been meaning to ask for a while...is that a Tara Chace icon?

...and if so, marry me?

When I found it, the serial numbers were long gone. g But it could be, couldn't it? (Except Tara Chace would never pull the trigger with the joint of her finger like that.)

If the artist were a screwup she would. Hell, I've seen Frank Castle pulling a trigger with the joint. ;-)

the Sun is revealed to be a mass of incandescent gases

A giant nuclear inferno where hydrogen turns to helium at a temperature of millions of degrees!

Gyah! Earworm!

Okay, it's a cool earworm.

Poor New Scientist. It's not their fault; they didn't do the research, they just reported on it.

They weren't expecting such high levels of psychosis.

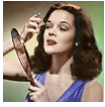

Srsly.

It's like we keep rolling the rock up the hill. And at the end of the day we put the chocks under the wheels and go home. Some idiot on second shift pulls the chocks to use under his rock, and we come in next morning to find our rock at the bottom of the hill and the equivalent of some geek with a grant at the Victorian Institute of Forensic Mental Health staring at it muttering, "Why, I'll wager you anything this belongs up there!"

The researchers were in the UK and Europe, so obviously if they hadn't seen any of your bulletins, it's the fault of the legal attaches for not passing them along.

(Actually, I think the surprise was that psychosis was so prevalent, not that there were differences between VIP and non-VIP stalkers.)
